

Call for Abstracts

Abstract Deadline: January 20th

Brought to you by the Indiana University Rho Chapter of:

Once again, the Rho chapter of SGE at IU-Bloomington brings you the student research day and job fair. We are now accepting abstracts for presentations in all disciplines within earth and planetary sciences, and categories for graduate and undergraduate students. Even if you are just in the planning stages for your research, come present a poster on your ideas and get valuable feedback from peers and professionals in the geology community!

Abstracts are due January 20th, 2008. Please visit our newly designed website for more information or to contact an SGE officer.

We look forward to hearing about your research in February!

Formerly known as...

The conference formerly known as DOGS Day has changed its name as well as its appeal!

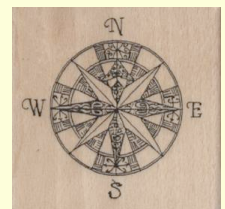

We now have presentation categories for every stage of your research, even the planning stages!

We invite industry and academic professionals to come have structured conversations, call them informal interviews, with interested students—this is a great opportunity to see what kinds of jobs are available to you upon completion of your degree.

This year we will have special invited lecturers to give talks about opportunities in advanced research.

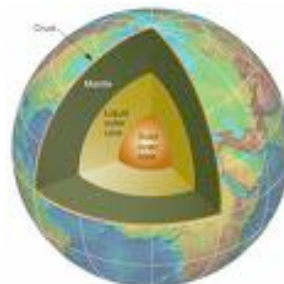

Join the fun!

-Martha Growdon, SGE Rho Chapter, VP

PRIZES, TRAVEL GRANTS, AND MORE

We offer prizes in several categories for presentations, and travel grants to help students from out of state come to our conference. We also offer housing for students who come to our conference. For the details and more information, visit our NEW WEBSITE:

http://web.mac.com/marthagrowdon/SGE_Rho_Chapter/DOGS_Day.html

We hope to see you in February!