Juniors: 60-89 hours at the end of 2007 Summer Session. Nov. 9-13.

Sophomores: 30-59 hours at the end of 2007 Summer Session. Nov. 14-16.

Freshmen: Less than 30 hours at the end of 2007 Summer Session. Nov. 26-30.

Notes:

1. Freshmen Advising Hold

Freshmen must contact their academic advisor to arrange to have the advising hold lifted.

2. Research Methods has "hidden" prerequisites

- (a) Research Methods (400:101) requires students to be a declared Psych major or minor by the starting date.
- (b) Freshmen who indicated intention to major in Psychology are considered "prospective" majors.
- (c) You can declare the major at the Psych office in 334 Baker Hall.
- (d) Students who wish to declare psychology as a major or minor, including the teaching programs, must have completed 9 hours of psychology courses (numbers 400:xxx) with a minimum GPA of at least 2.50.
- (e) That includes 400:001 (Intro Psych), plus two other 400: code courses (or the equivalent).
- (f) Only courses with an earned grade of at least a C- will count toward the majors and minors.
- (g) If you are currently (Fall '07) taking 400: code coursework which when completed would make you eligible to declare a Psych major or minor, you need to pick up a projected grade sheet in the Psych office (334 Baker) and have your prof. sign indicating you are currently performing at a level that would make you eligible when the semester is completed.

3. Individualized Instruction requires prior approval from the instructor

Individualized instruction courses require you to sign up for a section number unique to each instructor. You need to contact them in advance to be authorized to sign up. The most common courses this affects are:

400:192g (Practicum in Teaching Psychology)

400:193g (Research Experience in Psychology)

400:198 (Independent Study; consent of Dept. Head also required)

but there are some others as well.
